Title: My Great Grand Parents

PHOTO

Context

This is a photograph of my great grand parents taken on their wedding day on April 1st 1944 in England. He was a Dutch Naval Officer serving with the Royal Air Force and she was English and working in a war industry. They met at a dance in 1942.

Importance

This photograph hangs on my grandparent's lounge room wall. Grandad says it is special to him because it captures a very happy moment and there is a funny story behind it. They had to get married on April Fools Day because of a mistake in his orders.

Grandad tells me that that because of the Second World War two people from different countries were able to meet and fall in love. We would not be here otherwise. They migrated to Australia in 1950 and created our family here.

Seeing this photo on the wall reminds me of who we are and where we came from.
